CARING FOR THE COW PASTURE. TIPS FOR HOME

After each feeding water was given.

It Pays to Fertilize and Eliminate Weeds and Wet Spots.

The dairy farmer has two great objects before him-the production of a pure product and the reduction of cost. Both of these objects are favored by having a good pasture. Most pastures could be improved. The work required to make improvements would be many I times repaid by the increased feed and its enhanced palatability.

A little time with the scythe or mowing machine will get rid of unsightly weeds that can be eaten by the animals and taint the milk, besides crowding and shading the grasses. A Cozy. Dainty Outing Coat.

Of course the truly will be girl will merely suiff at the very idea of an outing coat being dainty. And it is rather more for the maiden who strolls or drives in lingeric frocks than for the sister in trotteur skirts and high laced boots.

It is a new coat, with all the nov elty and charm of extreme daintiness to make it popular. DRESSMAKERS.

If Patterns Bother You Cut One For Yourself.

Although there are many good patterns to be bad nowadays and they come pretty close to actual measurements, still there are some who continue to have difficulty in getting their clothes to fit. If you find after cutting out year waist from the paper pattern you have purchased that you must cut here, take up there and shave out the armholes the best plan to adopt is to cut out a waist from some cheap material or some old stuff that you may have around the house. In cutting out this waist cut it perfectly plain, allowlug an inch tuck to be stitched down about three inches alongside of the armhole. Now proceed to fit this perfeetly, making the needed alterations. Then when you have finished this much cut out a pattern from good, stiff The application of barnyard manure paper, allowing three-eighths of an inch for seams, also an extra half inch for closing in the back or front, whichever you may do. If you close in the front do not use the half inch in the back, and vice versa. Yet another way is to cut a pattern from an old bodic: that fits well, having first ripped it up.

If the sleeves bother you by being too long, too short or not large enough around the arm try the same method. cutting a pattern for a shirt waist sleeve and one for dressier waists. The skirt, too, might be handled in the same way-that is, for a good plain gored skirt. In tucking material for sleeves and waist always tuck first and cut out afterward.

You will find the above advice very helpful and the saving of a great many minutes that would otherwise go to fitting. With these patterns fitting you perfectly you can go ahead with your cutting and sewing together, trying on only for draping, trimming and general effect and finishing up in half the time it no doubt took you before. Of course this applies to ordinary bodices. which just now are used for linings and foundations.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

He Didn't Even Start.

The dark world had become rosy and sweet. A new dawn had entered into Harkaway's vision, and it was all gloriously golden. Mabel as they paced the sands on that wonderful moonlight night had yielded to his passionate entreaties, in which he had voiced all the aspirations of his ardeat nature and had spoken a soft yes to his question.

"Yes, Harold," she had murmured. with a shy giance at the moon-"yes, dear, I will be your wife."

For a long while Harkaway was silent. He feared to break the spell of the moment with ordinary human speech. So far and away beyond his real expectations had her answer been that it was difficult for him for the time being to realize that it was not all a dream, and who could tell but that the sound of his ewn voice would awaken him to a lonely reality? A QUEER UNIVERSITY.

Cairo Has the World's Oldest Educational Institution.

"When we think of Harvard or Yale, the former dating from 1638 and the latter from 1701, we think of them as old universities," says a writer in the American Educational Review; "but when we pass to the other side of the world we discover that even the oldest American universities are in reality very young institutions.

"The oldest educational institution in the world is the University of El-Ashar, Cairo, founded in the year 988 by the great Saladin. It is the central seat of learning for the whole Mohammedan world, as well as a foun tain of spiritual life. It occupies an ancient mosque in the Arab quarter of Cairo, surrounded by a confusing maze of narrow streets where the population is made up of representatives of every race that follows the prophet.

"The old mosque covers several acres and consists of a series of courts surrounded by long cloisters with low roofs supported by forests of columns. The floors of red tiles are covered daily by a multitude of men and boys, squatting in semicircles around their teachers, who six with their backs to the columns lecturing in monotones.

SHADOW LEGENDS AFTER

Zulus Believe the Bodily Shade Is the Future Spirit.

TAKING AWAY ONE'S SHADOW.

Why Some Races Are Forbidden to Look Into a Dark Pool of Water. The Way Donald McKay Managed to Escape the Clutches of the Devil.

That mysterious counterpart of a human being which lengthens with the day and disappears with the sun. to reappear more faintly with the rising of the moon; which we call a shadow, has always struck the imaglnation of man. It has played a prominent part in primitive superstition and | in later folklore. Shadows or shades was the classical name or figure for the spirits of the departed which still remains in use. This idea is not confined to civilized races. Among the Zulus the spirit is the shade. Bishop Callaway, whose Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made knowledge of Zulu beliefs and modes of thought was unrivaled, says that the Zulus connect the bodily shade with the future disembodied spirit. They believe that the shadow cast by the body will ultimately become the "itongo," or spirit, when the body dies, shortens "as a man approaches his end When they see the shadow of a man thus contracting, they know he will die. The long shadow goes away when a man is dead, and it is that which is meant when it is said, 'The shadow has departed." There is, however, a short shadow which remains with the body and is buried with it. The long shadow becomes an ancestral spirit.

Identification of the shadow in any mysterious or spiritual way with the person whose body casts it, naturally advice is free. leads to respect for the strange second self. To tread on the shadow of a chief is an insult to the chief himself. In the Institutes of Manu, the ancient Hindu law giver, the law runs:

"Let him not intentionally pass over the shadow of sacred images, of a natural or spiritual father, of a king, of a Brahmin who keeps house, or of any reverend personage, nor of one who has just performed a sacrifice."

There are traces of the survival of these primitive ways of regarding a man's shadow in the English country feeling that it is unlucky to cross the path of a newly married man as he leaves the altar; and in another rural belief that it is unlucky to cross the her was the day she truly felt her impath of horses ploughing when the sun portance."-New York Sun. is shining behind them.

Association between shadow's and rrored representations of the human form is obviously natural, so it is not surprising to find superstitions about the shadow mingled with widely scattered versions of the Narcissus legend. The story of the beautiful youth who became enamored of his own image, as he saw it represented in the water. and languished thereafter till he died. has its origin in the belief that trouble follows from beholding the watery

"Let him not look at his own image in water; that is a settled rule," commands Manu, the Hindu law giver.

The reason for the prohibition is to be found in the beliefs of man in a primitive state of civilization. The Melanesians of the Pacific, says a learned observer, say: "There is a stream in Saddle island, or, rather, a pool in a stream, into which if any one looks he dies; the malignant spirit takes held upon his life by means of his reflection in the water." Some such idea as this was probably the root of the Narcissus legend.

The Zulus explain why it is ill to look into the water of a pool by a story of a great beast in the water which can seize the shadow of a man and when his shadow is gone a man no longer wishes to turn back, but desires to enter the pool. He goes in. dies, and is eaten by the great beast which inhabits it. So, says Bishop Callaway, "men are forbidden to lean over and look into a dark pool, it being feared that their shadow should be taken away."

There see other ways in which a man may lose his shadow. There was a temple of Jupiter in Arcadia which, El Ashar and is not only the supreme if entered by those who were forbidden to do so, robbed them of their shadows.

Accordingly, his shadow was seized, while he himself escapes, and after his return to Scotland was never seen to have a

A companion illustration of "de'il tak the hin'most," from Aberdeenshire, is a story of a witch helped laird watching his reapers, whose shadow was seized by Satan, and who was ever after shadowless. In literature Chamisso's famous tale of "Peter Schlemihi" is a well known example of the stories of the shadowless.-New York American.

In this repsect pacents are less strict than they used to be. They yield to the entreaties of their children to attend social parties, to take part in church and other entertainments, and to spend much of their leisure time on the streets attending shows and other diversions. They do not insist on their children studying out of school, and then when the latter fall down in their classes the teachers are blamed. This condition is so noticeable now, that educators are trying to grapple with it and offset its influences. It is most damaging in the public schools, as private institutions can suspend the laggards, but in the public schools the law_compels the children to attend. This tendency is perhaps the chief cause why so few children go through the high school. TIMELY HINTS IN THE REALM FOR FARMERS

Breed Large Horses.

Large work horses are preferable on the farm and in the market. The trimroadster is not in such demand as for merly, and the driver and coach, once the favorite in the cities and still commanding high prices, is being crowded merely smill at the very idea of an outing coat being dainty. And it is rather more for the maiden who strolls or drives in lingerie frocks than for the sister in trotteur skirts and high laced boots.

It is a new coat, with all the novelty and charm of extreme daintiness to make it popular. It is made of white Japanese silk both inside and out and carefully interlined with softest cotion, then generously quilted just as any dressing-gown would be. Without the bulkiness, however, of the bedroom gown and far more shapely in its lines is this smart little coar made to wear instead of the regulation sweater. It is claimed for it that it will wash beautifully, which would obviate its one possible drawback. White is always lovely, but somewhat delicate for streamous wear.

DRESSMAKERS.

If Patterns Bother You Cut One For Yourself.

Although there are many good patterns to be had nowadays and they come pretty close to actual measurements, still there are some who contime to have difficulty in getting their clothes to fit. If you find after cutting out your waist from the paper pattern you have purchased that you must cut here, take up there and shave out the armholes the best plan to adopt is to cut out a waist from some cheap material or some old stuff that you may have around the house. In cutting out this waist cut it perfectly plain, allowing an inch tuck to be stitched down about three inches alongside of the armhole. Now proceed to fit this perfeetly, making the needed alterations. Then when you have finished this much cut out a pattern from good, stiff inch for seams, also an extra half inch for closing in the back or front, whichever you may do. If you close in the front do not use the half inch in the back, and vice versa. Tet another way is to cut a pattern from an old bodice

If the sleeves bother you by being too long, too short or not large enough around the arm try the same method. cutting a pattern for a shirt waist sleeve and one for dressier waists. The skirt, too, might be handled in the same way-that is, for a good plain gored skirt. In tucking material for sleeves and waist always tuck first and cut out afterward.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

He Didn't Even Start.

The dark world had become your and sweef. A new dawn had entered into Harkaway's vision, and it was all gloriously golden. Mabel as they paced the sands on that wonderful moonlight night had yielded to his passionate eutreaties, in which he had voiced all the aspirations of his ardeat nature and had spoken a soft yes to his question.

"Yes, Harold," she had murmured, with a shy glance at the moon-"yes, dear, I will be your wife."

For a long while Harkaway was silent. He feared to break the spell of the moment with ordinary human speech. So far and away beyond his real expectations had her answer been that it was difficult for him for the time being to realize that it was not all a dream, and who could tell but that the sound of his ewn voice would awaken him to a lonely reality? Thus they walked on for a brief period, and then, summoning his courage to his aid; he ventured:

A QUEER UNIVERSITY.

Cairo Has the World's Oldest Educational Institution.

"When we think of Harvard or Yale, the former dating from 1638 and the latter from 1701, we think of them as old universities," says a writer in the American Educational Review; "but when we pass to the other side of the world we discover that even the oldest American universities are in reality very young institutions.

"The oldest educational institution in the world is the University of El-Ashar, Cairo, founded in the year 988 by the great Saladin. It is the central seat of learning for the whole Mohammedan world, as well as a foun tain of spiritual life. It occupies an ancient mosque in the Arab quarter of Cairo, surrounded by a confusing maze of narrow streets where the population is made up of representatives of every race that follows the prophet.

"The old mosque covers several acres and consists of a series of courts surrounded by long cloisters with low roofs supported by forests of columns. The floors of red tiles are covered daily by a multitude of men and boys, squarting in semicircles around their teachers, who sit with their backs to the columns lecturing in monotones.

"The chancellor of the university is always a descendant of the prophet and is usually a man of ability and learning. He occupies apartments in El Ashar and is not only the supreme ; of the church of Egypt.

"There is no organization similar to ! to the pillory, the whipping post of that in modern universities. Any reputable man who desires to teach can obtain the privilege by application and without even the power left her of is assigned a column where he may sit and impart the truth as he thinks proper. His fame or ability will attract more or less students and dis-

SHADOW LEGENDS AFTER

Zulus Believe the Bodily Shade Is the Future Spirit,

TAKING AWAY ONE'S SHADOW.

Why Some Races Are Forbidden to Look Into a Dark Pool of Water. The Way Donald McKay Managed to Escape the Clutches of the Devil.

That mysterious counterpart of a human being which lengthens with the day and disappears with the sun. to reappear more faintly with the rising of the moon; which we call a shadow, has always struck the imagination of man. It has played a prominent part in primitive superstition and in later folklore. Shadews or shades was the classical name or figure for the spirits of the departed which still remains in use.

This idea is not confined to civilized races. Among the Zuius the spirit is the shade. Bishop Callaway, whose Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made knowledge of Zulu beliefs and modes me a well woman and I have no more of thought was unrivated, says that backache. I hope I can help others by with the future discubodied spirit. Vegetable Compound has done for They believe that the shadow cast by me."—Mrs. Emmalmse, 833 First St., They believe that the shadow cast by the body will ultimately become the "itongo," or spirit, when the body dles, and they say that the long shadow constantly being received by the shortens "as a man approaches his end Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, and contracts into a very little thing. "Let him not intentionally pass over the shadow of sacred images, of a natural or spiritual father, of a king. of a Brahmin who keeps house, or of any reverend personage, nor of one who has just performed a sacrifice."

There are traces of the survival of these primitive ways of regarding a man's shadow in the English country feeling that it is unlucky to cross the path of horses ploughing when the sun is shining behind them.

Association between shadows and mirrored representations of the human form is obviously natural, so it is not surprising to find superstitions about the shadow mingled with widely scattered versions of the Narcissus legend. The story of the beautiful youth who became enamored of his own image, as he saw it represented in the water. and languished thereafter till be died. has its origin in the belief that trouble follows from beholding the watery - martin of the second

"Let him not look at his own image in water; that is a settled rule," commands Manu, the Hindu law giver.

The reason for the prohibition is to be found in the beliefs of man in a primitive state of civilization. The Melanesians of the Pacific, says a learned observer, say: "There is a stream in Saddle Island, or, rather, a pool in a stream, into which if any one looks be dies; the malignant spirit takes hold upon his life by means of his reflection in the water." Some such idea as this was probably the root of the Narcissus legend.

The Zulus explain why it is ill to look into the water of a pool by a story of a great beast in the water which can seize the shadow of a man and when his sladow is gone a man no longer wishes to turn back, but desires to enter the pool. He goes in. dies, and is eaten by the great beast which inhabits it. So, says Bishop Callaway, "men are forbidden to lean over and look into a dark pool, it being feared that their shadow should be taken away."

There see other ways in which a man may lose his shadow. There was a temple of Jupiter in Arcadia which, if entered by those who were foreducational but the ecclesiastical head bidden to do so, robbed them of their

TUBERCULOSIS TREATMENT vs. TUBERCULOSIS CURE

There is a vast difference between a treatment and a CURE. Sanatorium, Dietetic and Climatic Treatment are beneficial in a way. They "bolster up." But off-times give the consumptive the impression that he is cured, while the disease has really been slumbering, and soon gains headway again, developing more rapidly. Consumptives first think of sanatoria
